SUPPLIERS OF 18th CENTURY PORCELAINS

A 17th century Japanese bottle

A 17th century Japanese Arita bottle, probably for the Dutch market, the slender neck with double ridges at the rim, painted in underglaze blue with a bird on a branch, pomegranates and leaves, beneath a blue band and growing flowers and leaves, 10 1/4" high, circa 1620, no mark

See The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, for an identical bottle, from the Hans Syz Collection
